

LEVERAGE YOUR LICKS

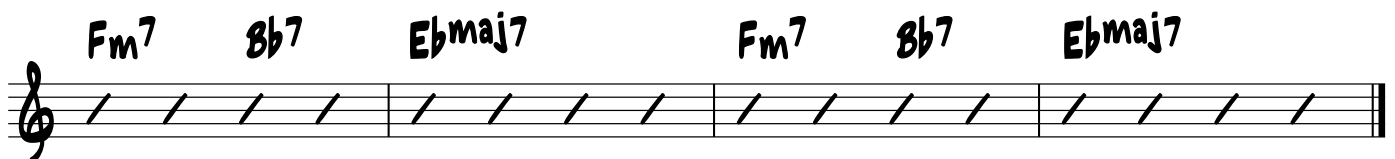

FROM DIGGING DEEPER VIDEO #168

Jazz is impossibly hard. I've had adult students who are cardiac surgeons, CEO's and rocket scientists (no joke), and they typically tell me that jazz is harder than what they do. The good news is that, as in all fields, we get to leverage our knowledge. The more we know, the easier it is to know more. Focus on what you know NOW, and take it forward. You'll get good, fast.

#1 - Excerpt of an etude I wrote for Jazz Wire members, over "I Got Rhythm"

#2 - Chords to our new song, "My Little Suede Shoes"

The question is, how do we bring information (melodies, licks, rhythms, groove, shapes) from one song to the next? Today, we are talking about melodies and melodic licks.

- Find chords that are THE SAME between the songs (you'll likely need to transpose).
- Find ideas you like. Analyze them. Why do they work? Is there a place in your "new song" with SIMILAR chords? (your ability with harmony is important here).
