

STOP IMPROVISING SO MUCH!

FROM DIGGING DEEPER VIDEO #191

Improvising seems like magic, just making up music as we go along. Pulling it out of thin air, and creating things that have never existed before. Touched by the muse, and on a different plane than mere mortals . . . except for that is mostly not true.

Our heroes were doing a lot of assembly, putting together pieces that they were very well acquainted with. They were often crafting solos, not inventing them. They were essentially building a table, very similar to one that they had built before. Take away the magic and the romance for a second, and we can see a path forward for ourselves.

In short, stop improvising so much! Less inventing, and more assembly.
