

TRITONE SUB THE TWO!

FROM DIGGING DEEPER JAZZ - VIDEO #159

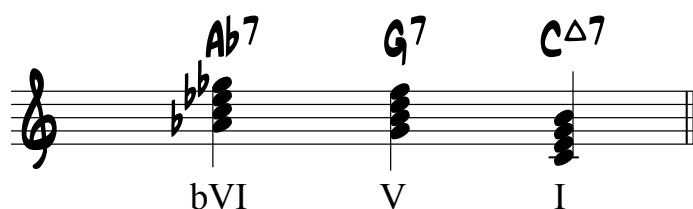

Tritone subs are a staple of jazz composition and improvisation, and are endlessly interesting. If you haven't yet, look over Digging Deeper #156 to get up and running with the idea. Here, we'll expand our thinking to using a tritone sub on the II chord. Yes, it's allowed!

The underlying rules of what makes a tritone sub truly work (3rds and 7ths interchanging) don't really apply when subbing a II chord, but we aren't going to let that slow us down.

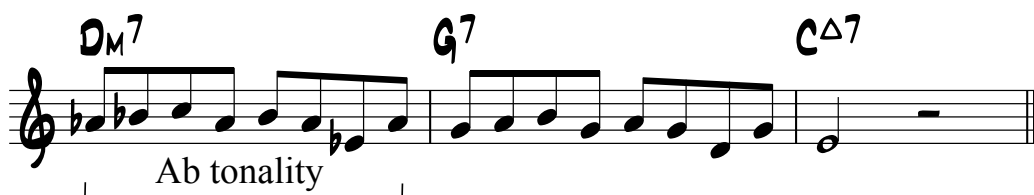

#1 - Typical ii - V - I progression

#2 - Tritone Sub on II chord (bVI- V - I)

#3 - Using a Tritone Sub over a ii - V - I

Here we are thinking "Ab melodies" over the measure of Dm7.

#4 - John Coltrane (Wheelin')

#5 - Dexter Gordon or Sonny Rollins . . . ?
