

JAZZ IS LEGATO!

FROM DIGGING DEEPER VIDEO #96

This concept is terribly easy to understand: connect all of your notes, most of the time. It's central to developing a great feel and groove, so now we know that it's very important as well. Sadly, it's quite hard to actually do, however! Think of how easy it is to understand "sit up straight," or "save your money," or "don't put yourself down." Easy right? Sure . . .

Playing legato (connecting our notes), requires incredible control over our instruments. The ability to move from one note to another is fraught with difficulty, and requires very specific technical demands from instrument to instrument. Finger accuracy, air control, strength, endurance, hand coordination and so much more are all at play here. This is high-level, extremely pro stuff.

It can be tricky to analyze and fix this issue without guidance from a coach. For today, the first step is simply understanding that Jazz Is Legato. When you know what to listen for, what your heroes were doing, you begin to have a fighting chance. Listen hard, and connect those notes!

Blues Etude For C Instruments (Jeff Antoniuk)

Blues Etude For Bb Instruments (Jeff Antoniuk)

Blues Etude For Eb Instruments (Jeff Antoniuk)

Blues Etude For Bass Clef Instruments (Jeff Antoniuk)

