

A LESSON W. SONNY STITT

FROM DIGGING DEEPER VIDEO #66

I highly suggest taking lessons with your favorite players. They don't charge any money for it, and they are often happy to tell you some very cool secrets fairly quickly.

My recent lesson with Sonny Stitt took place at the Hi-Hat Club in Boston in 1954. OK, to be totally honest, my lesson was listening to that album. I wasn't alive in 1954. But he still taught me a LOT. Sonny Stitt showed me a fantastic minor ii-V-i lick, which then told me something about his approach on minor ii-V's in general. The album is called "Jazz At The Hi-Hat" by Sonny Stitt. You can find it on You Tube.

#1 - "Indiana (2nd take)" . . . measure 25 of the 1st chorus

#2 - "Indiana (2nd take)" . . . measure 25 of the 4th chorus

#3 - A linear collection (scale) of all the notes he played

Other tunes that use this harmonic progression (which means you can use this lick when you are playing them) - Black Nile, Segment, Softly As In A Morning Sunrise, Alone Together, How Deep Is The Ocean, I've Found A New Baby, It Don't Mean A Thing, A Night In Tunisia, Summertime, Yesterdays, and a million more . . .
